1. Choose a local area which can be improved, such as a brownfield site or a building that has closed down.
2. Consider how you think it should change in the next ten years, and what issues the local council planning department may need to consider to make it happen.
3. You should then develop a 5-step plan. The plan should be in the format of a short report, video or PowerPoint presentation with maps/imagery that showcases the regeneration proposal.
